University of California – Future Physician Leaders

The FPL program is a long term mentorship program for students interested to fulfill a mission of service to the community. For six weeks during the summer, students participate in a leadership lecture series, community service and research project, and physician shadowing rotations. Throughout the rest of the year there are networking events with physicians and healthcare leaders. There are two sites for the program; Coachella Valley based out of the UCR Palm Desert campus and the Riverside-San Bernardino region based out of the UC Riverside School of Medicine campus. Cost: Free. Application Deadline: April 20, 2012

Internships by Deadline

California Business Venture

California Business Venture is a unique hands-on experience developed for the purpose of educating high school students in the fields of business, entrepreneurship, and financial literacy. Students participating in this 4-day, 4-night program, while residing in the dorms of a local university, will be divided into groups of five to ten. Each group will act as a competing company. With a professional advisor, through the use of a computer simulation, students will manage their company through approximately 2 years. They will be expected to make difficult decisions about financial strategies, marketing strategies, competition, and much more. The total cost per student is $500.
