

Blue Shark

by Justin

The blue shark is a kind of fish. The blue shark lives in warm water all over the world. An adult blue shark can grow up to 12.5 feet long. For food, the blue shark eats mostly squid and sometimes little and big fish. The blue shark has live babies and does not lay eggs. The babies are called pups. The mom has between 14-135 babies. The blue shark is known as the wolf of the sea because they hunt in packs. The blue shark is at the top of the food chain. They are almost endangered animals. These sharks are the only sharks that hunt in packs. The blue shark is very dangerous to people.

The Blue Shark lives in the blue areas of the map.
