

WALRUS

by STEVEN

The Walrus is a mammal.

Male Pacific Walrus weighs 800 to 1,700 kg. Female Pacific Walrus weigh about 400 to 1,250 kg.

The Walrus eats clams, worms, and Sea Cucumbers. Sometimes they prey on fish such as polar cod.

Walrus live in the Pacific Ocean, Atlantic Ocean and Arctic Ocean. Walrus spend about two-thirds of their lives in water.

The mother has one baby at a time, and most pregnancies are spaced for at least two years apart for younger females.

The Walrus can sleep while it swims.

A mother shelters her calf under her chest between her fore-flippers.

Most Walrus have 18 teeth.

Total world Walrus population is about 250,000 animals.

Walrus do not chew their food, but they do sometimes crush clam shells.
