Comanche
By: Justin

The Comanche Indians were known to be great warriors. They spent most of their days hunting and riding horses. They also loved to play games like Lacrosse and Shinny. The Comanche were a powerful and brave people.

The Comanche Indians were also known as The Lords of the Plains because of the way they rode horses. The Comanche's were excellent horse riders. They would catch wild horses and would tame them to be fantastic partners with the brave warriors.

The Comanche were a nomadic people. That means that they moved their home from place to place. The Comanche warriors hunted the buffalo and their families followed along and set up camp.

The Comanche people were a very brave and proud Indian tribe.