

Iroquios

by
MADISON

They live in what is now New York State on the banks of the Hudson River.

They ate com, beans, squash, berries, herds, deer, elk, fish, corn breads, stews and soups.

They live in what is called a long house.

The women wore wraparound shirts and short leggings the men wore gustoweh.

The Iroquois's did POW wows which was special dance they did they wore lots of bright costumes and feathers.

They were owned by the French that is why their name is French.

They barley used canoes they usually traveled by land. They used dogs to hunt because they had no horses in tell they brought them from Europe.

In the war the men used bows and arrows, spears, shields and clubs.

They used very unique instruments like boys use flutes and played songs at night to show their women they were thinking about them. They also you a water drum they fill it up with water to give it a unique sound.
