Your Infant's Brain Development

Much of your baby's brain develops after birth. It also develops more rapidly before age one than at any other time in life. Therefore, you have many chances every day to help your baby's brain develop in healthy ways.

- The outside world shapes the brain
- Babies learn to experience the outside world through their senses
- The experiences you provide greatly affect the way your young child will learn think, and behave for the rest of his or her life.

The brain is the part of the body that feels joy or despair, reacts in a loving or angry way, or uses reason instead of simply reacting. These abilities don't just appear. They are the result of heredity and the experiences the baby has during childhood.

Babies' brains are greatly influenced by:

- Their relationships with parents and other important caregivers
- Their sense of sight, sound, smell, touch, and taste
- The feelings they experience, and
- The challenges they meet

Use babies' "quiet alert" time to help them grow and learn. Keep your baby near you. Babies thrive on loving attention. Smile when you talk.

Hold me, love me, praise me so,
Teach me, hug me, watch me grow.

I'm Happy You're My Mom
By: Joanna Fuchs

*I'm happy you're my mom,
'Cause you take good care of me.
You love me and you show it.
So I'm as happy as can be.*

Ms. Crystalyn

Hi, my name is Crystalyn Valles. I am 27 years old. I have been married to my husband for two and half years and we have a wonderful daughter who is almost two. She is truly a blessing in our lives. I have been working in the child development field for over six years and have been at the Child Development Center since October, 2012. I enjoy working with children and getting to see how their minds expand with new knowledge everyday.
